Our craft is personal to each of us, and we're intentional in choosing sustainable business partnerships and leading a sustainable practice. We source our leather collections from the highest quality raw material selections throughout Europe. Maintaining strong relationships with the most elite and ethically responsible tanneries in Italy, we work together to create purposeful leather products.

HAUTE COUTURE

The Legacy of Italian Leather

For centuries, Italy has been known as a center for food, fashion and architecture. Leather crafted exclusively in Italian tanneries has long been coveted for haute couture handbags, designer shoes, and luxury items from cars to clothing.

When sourcing our leather, Garrett has partnered with the premier Italian tanneries in order to bring you the finest hides available for your next project.

We have been working with Italian tanneries for over thirty years and have developed intimate relationships with many of the family-owned tanneries which continue to pass this craft down through generations. This personal connection, careful attention to detail and extensive industry knowledge is unique.

RESPONSIBLE

Partnerships with Purpose

As a privately owned, family-run business, Garrett Leather partners with Italian tanneries whose values align with ours. These tanneries have been passed down for generations and they employ those who live in the surrounding areas. Our partners desire to follow responsible production practices for themselves, their families and their communities.

Our Italian tanneries meet the following qualifications:

- REACH compliant
- ISO9001 certified
- ISO1400 certified
- Audited members of Leather Working Group

ETHICAL

Ethically Sourced, Naturally Conscious

When you choose a Garrett Leather product, you creatively reuse upcycled hides, transformed into a beautiful, durable product that would otherwise end up in landfills. We carefully select our European leather hides that are a natural by-product of the meat industry. The European Union leads the world in passing legislation that protects farmed animals from cruel treatment, banning artificial growth hormones and prohibiting the use of GMO grains. These animals grow at normal rates and graze on natural grass in spacious, open fields. Under these natural conditions, the integrity of the fiber structure is stronger and intact without damage caused by unnatural growth rates, barbed wires or brands.

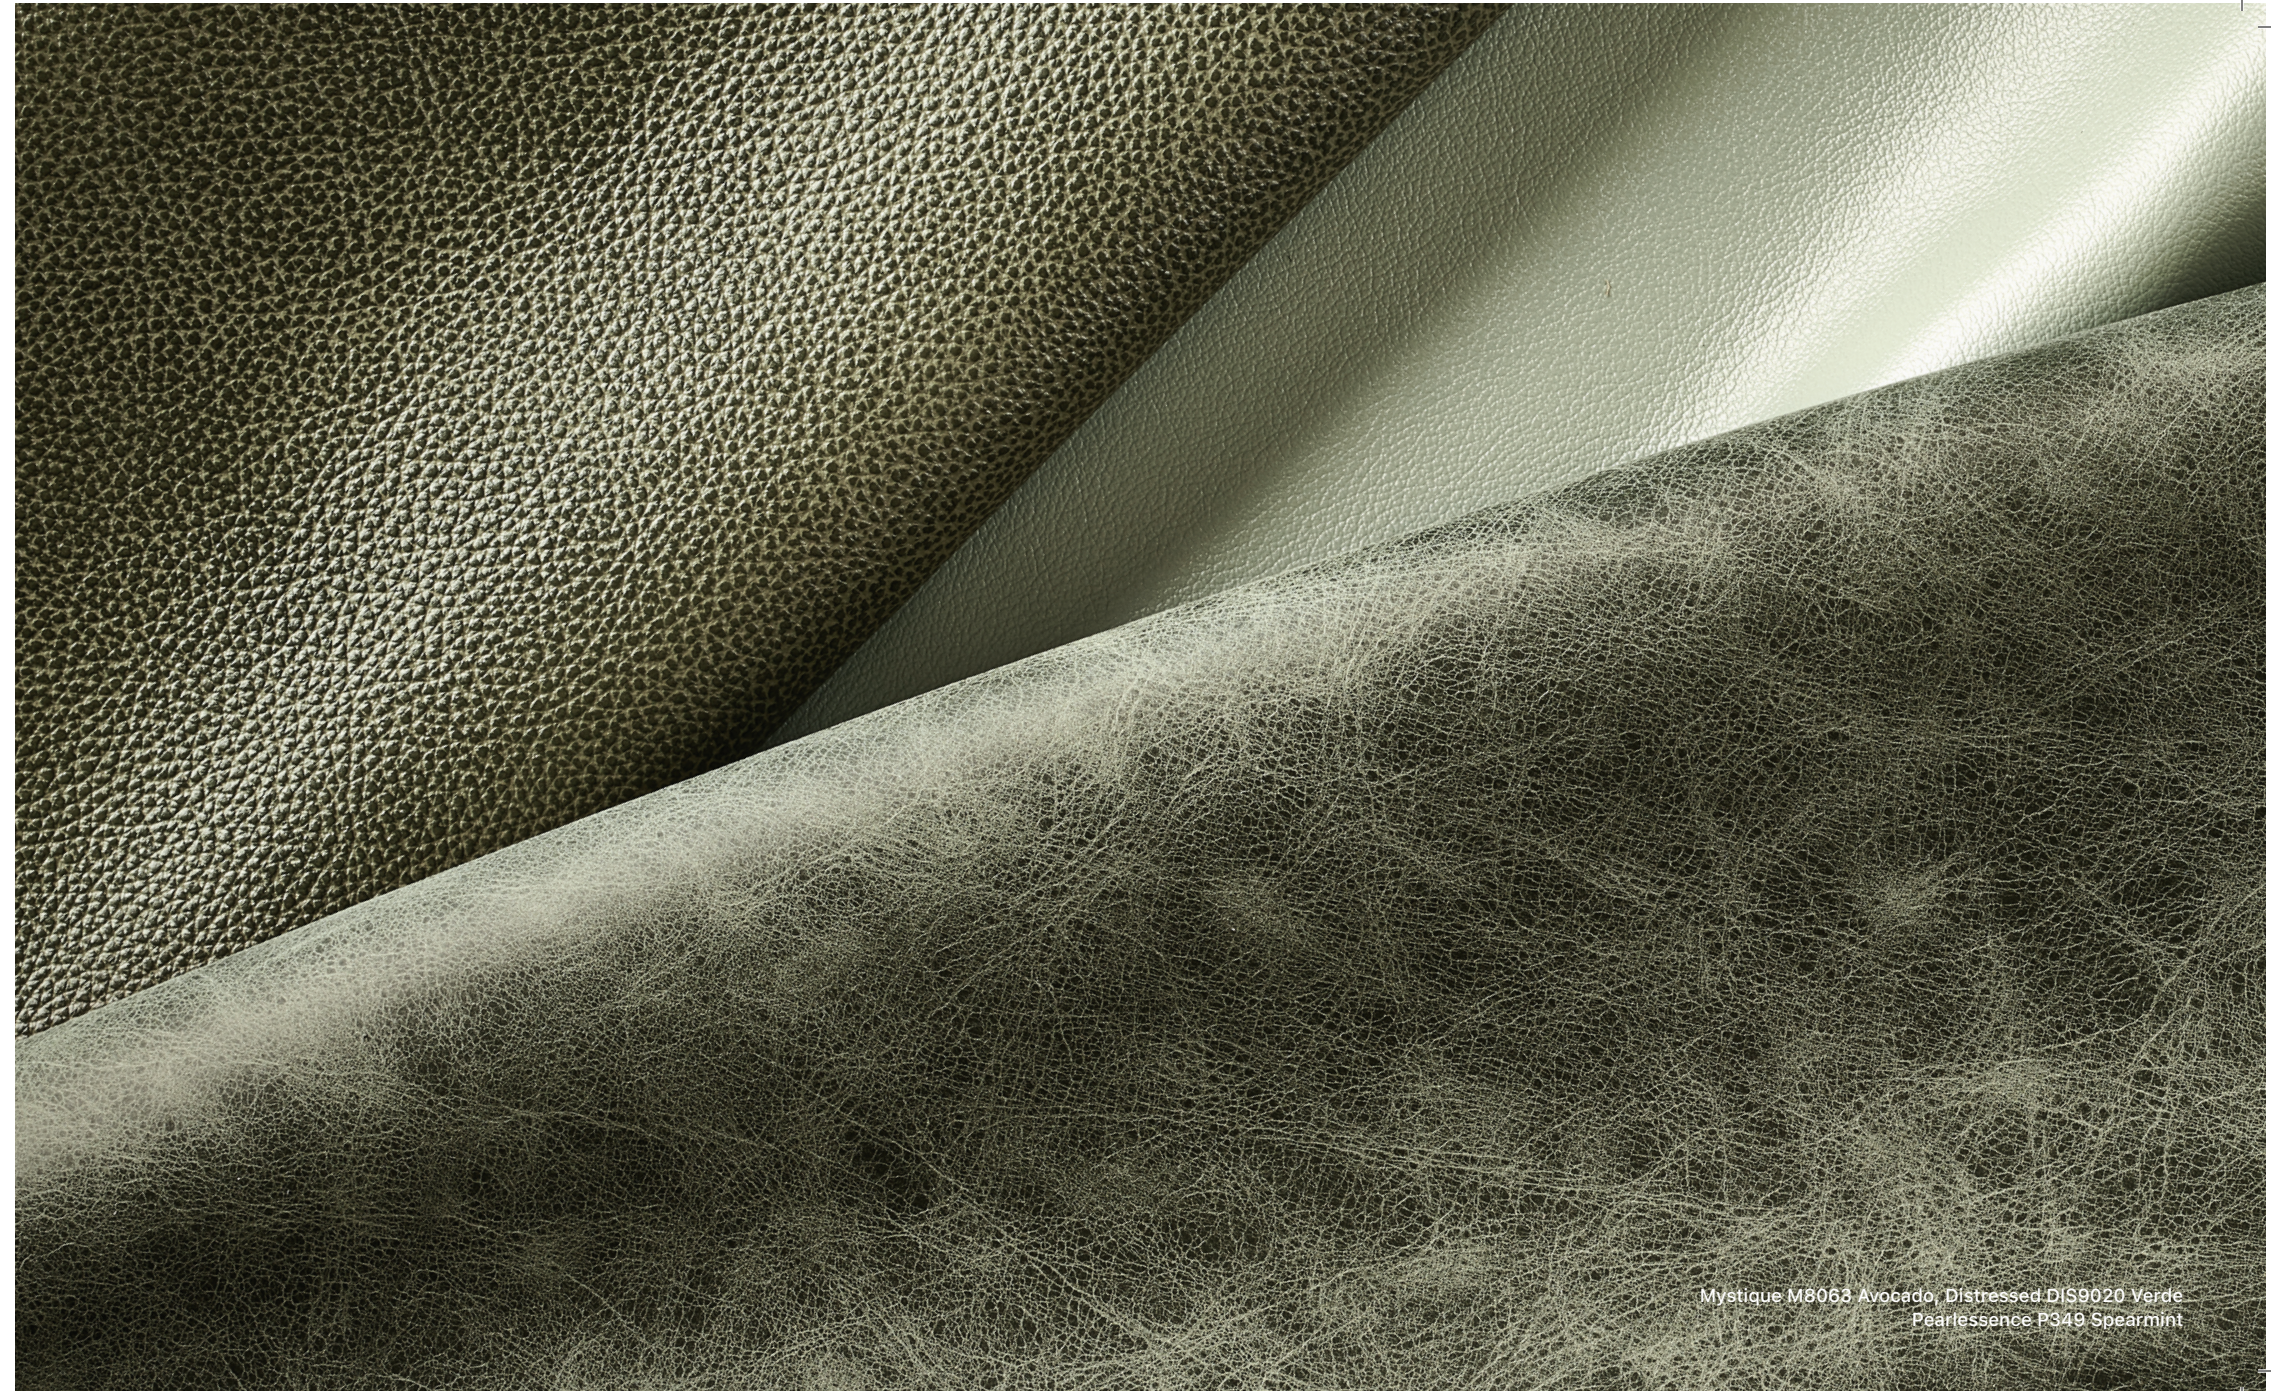

RENEWABLE

Leather that Looks Good— and Does Good

Garrett Leather is sensitive to the natural environment and the impact we make on natural resources. We incorporate responsible behavior in every aspect of our day-to-day business. We expect the same from our vendors.

We partner with premier Italian tanneries that must follow strict European Union guidelines to protect the environment. Our products are exclusively from farmed animals in Europe and do not contribute to the destruction of rainforests in South America. No animal is ever harmed solely for the use of its hide. Rather, leather tanning prevents unnecessary waste from entering into landfills. Our products offer lasting utility and beauty for generations, without the use of non-decomposable plastics or other toxins.

Italian regulations stipulate that water waste must be purified at water treatment plants and returned to the environment as cleaner, drinkable water. While there are many resources for leather throughout the world, we will not lower our standards.

EFFICIENT

Efficient, from Start to Finish

You'll see our dedication to high-quality standards from production to fulfillment. We ensure our products arrive in an efficient manner and meet our quality inspection standards. To minimize our environmental impact, we work to keep costs and material waste as low as possible.

We maintain the following sustainable operational practices:

- Up to 90% of electricity at our corporate headquarters is generated from zero-emission sources.
- We reuse metal A-frame horses from dyelot shipments to store hides at our corporate headquarters or to ship large orders to our customers.
- Our shipping boxes are engineered to fit specific hide sizes, minimizing empty space and keeping shipping costs to a minimum.
- We fabricate Wall Panels and Cast Panels using no added urea formaldehyde (NAUF) MDF to protect the health of those handling and living with our Wall Panels.

— RELIABLE EXPERTISE

Consultative Partnership

The relationships with our clients are built on deep trust and industry knowledge. We listen to our client goals, identify best-matched products and cater our leather to their specific application needs and desires. We also provide continued leather education to clients and the industry at large.
